

MARY SAYS SWAIN GIRL IS NOT MISSING WIFE

Upsets Belief of Brooklyn Woman That Victim Is Her Sister.

MARINE'S CLUE FAILS

Bundle of Clothing Found, but Police See Little Value to Probe.

IDENTITY STILL MYSTERY

Detectives Begin Search of All Laundries—Mother One of Visitors at Morgue.

A second expected identification of the Long Island City murder victim failed last night when Thomas Higgins of 313 Quincy street, Brooklyn, went to the morgue and denied that the dead woman was his missing wife, Dolly. His sister-in-law, Mrs. May Dollard of 757 Hudson street, Brooklyn, had expressed the belief in the afternoon that the dead woman was Mrs. Higgins. Mrs. Dollard thought there was a resemblance between her sister and the dead girl in the mouth, chin, wrists and hands, and particularly the hair, but Higgins said he failed to see it.

Capt. A. B. Moeller of the Marine Corps said he was satisfied the murder victim was not the young woman who had complained to him three weeks ago about a marine under his command. Capt. Moeller, as told in this New York Herald yesterday, went to the morgue Sunday night and said he thought there was a resemblance, but yesterday a photograph of the girl he had in mind was given to him and he said it did not resemble the dead girl. At the same time the chaplain of the Marine Barracks, Brooklyn, made it known that he had seen the woman in question last Saturday afternoon, several hours after the mutilated body had been found in the pond at Queens Boulevard and Rawson street, Long Island City.

Not Like Missing Woman.

Mrs. Dollard went from the morgue to Police Headquarters, where she talked with Capt. Arthur Carey, head of the Homicide Squad, for more than an hour. Capt. Carey said afterward he was satisfied Mrs. Dollard had made a mistake because there was a discrepancy in the descriptions of the missing woman and the dead girl, and that there was a big difference in their ages. Mrs. Higgins had a front gold tooth. The dead girl's front teeth are in perfect condition. But to be doubly sure, Capt. Carey sent for Mr. Higgins. When he got to the morgue he took one look at the body and announced that it positively was not that of his wife.

In the absence of an identification virtually no progress toward a solution of the crime had been made last night. The only possible new clue was a bundle of woman's clothing found in a Brooklyn street. The clothes were of a size that would have fitted the dead girl. But whether there might be any connection between the clothing which a little girl saw thrown from an automobile on Saturday and the murder of the girl the detectives could not say. The clothing, which consists of a blue serge coat with a gray alpaca lining, and a wide plaid dress, will be examined thoroughly. The material in the coat is not unlike a piece of serge found sewed to the brassiere worn by the dead girl.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

Laundries Being Searched.

Detectives learned that Atkin & Hartman, shirt manufacturers, at 44 East Fourteenth street are the sole distributors for shirts bearing the label on the two shirts found around the dead girl's head. The shirts will be turned over to the manufacturers, who have assured the police they will give every assistance in locating the retailer who sold them. But the third shirt, which was fleeced lined, will not be so easy to trace, as there are a half dozen manufacturers of such garments in this city and at least that number of them are jobbers. Photographs of the laundry marks on the shirts are being used by detectives in a search of all laundries in this city. Last night they were working in Long Island City in the vicinity of the barren waste in which the body was found.

Mrs. Mabel Hamilton of 124 Huron street, Brooklyn, went to the morgue but failed to recognize the dead girl her daughter, Mabel, who has been missing since Wednesday. She displayed several letters that had passed between her daughter and a member of the Marine Corps.

COL. DELAFIELD DECORATED.

War Medal Given at Dinner by General Bullard.

Col. John R. Delafield was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal by Lieut.-Gen. Robert Lee Bullard at a dinner last night at the Hotel Astor of the War Period Veterans of the Veterans Corps of Artillery and the Ninth Coast Artillery Corps. For "conspicuous meritorious and distinguished service as chairman of the War Department board of contract adjustment."

Former Gov. Charles S. Whitman was the principal speaker. Other guests of honor were Lieut.-Col. E. C. Delafield, Capt. Bradshaw, U. S. N., and Capt. Coffey, U. S. N.

TIMELY SERVICE SOCIETY RECEIVES COURT WARNING

Ordered Not to Shake Any More Tin Collection Boxes in Subway—Sentences of Three Collectors Suspended by Magistrate Simpson.

Did the Timely Service Society, 22 Nassau street, operate a Chorus Girls' Rest as well as a farm where ex-service men received jobs? Were the girls, fatigued by their labors of collecting funds for the society, sent to the New Jersey country place of the society to recuperate?

The District Attorney's office of New York county would like to know. Assistant District Attorney Purcell, who has been looking into the society, along with other fund seeking organizations, says he heard the story is true. George W. Messervy, treasurer and general manager, declares it isn't so. There were only three chorus girls at the farm, he says, and they were there only for the Fourth of July. The use of chorus girls out of jobs as collectors stopped, he explains, after three of them were arrested. It was the arrested three who went to the farm, and they went there to escape publicity.

Mr. Purcell asserted no chorus girl ever went anywhere to escape publicity. And there you are.

As for the society, it was warned yesterday by Magistrate George W. Simpson in Tombs court not to shake any more tin boxes in the subway. Three collectors were found guilty of disorderly conduct and received suspended sentences on their promise not to do it again. Mr. Messervy was told tin box shaking was a breach of the peace and the next offenders would get six months in the workhouse.

"The American Legion has denounced you and no American soldier with self-respect would go out soliciting funds in this manner," the court said. Mr. Messervy replied that soliciting funds in the subway had stopped Saturday and no more of it would be done.

Mr. Purcell said he had notified the Unemployed Veterans Association, Inc., of which L. Marco, 146 Grafton street, Brooklyn, is president, that its collections were unauthorized and had issued a subpoena for a man, who was using the name of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in a chance selling scheme.

"Such an allegation infers that I committed bigamy in marrying Mr. Tartou, which is far from the truth," said Mrs. Tartou. "My previous marriage to Mr. Busch was automatically annulled with the discovery that he had not been divorced from his first wife."

"The sequence of events is as follows: In 1902 Mr. Busch, who is a son of Frederick Busch of St. Louis, married Miss Alice Mittleburg. The first Mrs. Busch instituted divorce proceedings against her husband. In June, 1912, I was married to Mr. Busch on the assurance of his father that the first Mrs. Busch had obtained her decree. Twelve days after the marriage I learned that the first Mrs. Busch had not divorced her husband and I left him. In June, 1913, Mr. Busch married Miss Dorothy Meyers, and in October, 1913, I married Mr. Tartou.

"My suit for separation against Mr. Tartou and his counter claim for an annulment of our marriage have been suspended pending the outcome of my lawyer's communication with the first Mrs. Busch in St. Louis."

THEFT OF $225 COAT HALTED.

Tina Conelli, a well dressed young woman of Jersey City, was accused yesterday of trying to walk out of Gimbel Bros. department store wearing a $225 fur coat for which she had not paid. She was arrested by Detective Leef of the West Thirtieth street station and held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury by Magistrate McAndrews in Jefferson Market court.

Plain clothes men armed with rifles mingled with passengers of the United States Line's steamship America, after she arrived yesterday from Bremen. Some of the passengers complained to customs inspectors that the armed men annoyed them because of the careless way they handled the rifles.

The inspectors said the men had been employed by the steamship company to guard the cargo, because of thefts on her previous arrival here. It was added that armed men were unnecessary, as a large number of customs guards were on duty.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

SKIPPER FALLS DEAD TYING UP HIS VESSEL

Passing of Wife and Accidents Lead to His Death.

Capt. A. E. Archibald, master of the Clyde liner Huron, now in the Santo Domingo service, dropped dead of heart disease yesterday just as he was tying up his ship at Pier 34, Brooklyn. His wife died three months ago at their home, 497 Tenth street, Brooklyn.

Tempestuous weather on the trip from Santo Domingo, following a series of aggravating mishaps, including the parting of an anchor cable in Santo Domingo harbor and the carrying away of steering gear, had made him weary. The realization that he would miss the joy of greeting his wife increased his melancholy.

Adding to his worries, his ship jarrred him when she bumped against the end of the pier while docking. When she was made fast the skipper fell forward on the bridge, dying instantly. Capt. Archibald was born in Eastport, Me., sixty-one years ago. He had been with the Clyde Line for thirty years.

RIFLES USED TO GUARD THE AMERICA'S CARGO

Passengers Complain of Arms Displayed at Pier.

Plain clothes men armed with rifles mingled with passengers of the United States Line's steamship America, after she arrived yesterday from Bremen. Some of the passengers complained to customs inspectors that the armed men annoyed them because of the careless way they handled the rifles.

The inspectors said the men had been employed by the steamship company to guard the cargo, because of thefts on her previous arrival here. It was added that armed men were unnecessary, as a large number of customs guards were on duty.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

John Cleary of 598 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, turned the bundle over to the police of the Hunters Point station. He said his daughter was standing at Vanderbilt and St. Mark's avenues Saturday afternoon when the bundle was thrown out of a passing automobile. The girl noticed that two men were seated in the rear of the machine, but it disappeared so quickly she could not see its number.

W. F. SCHLEMMER SUED FOR $500,000

Hardware Merchant Accused by W. J. Wilkinson in Alienation Case.

MISCONDUCT IS CHARGED

Plaintiff Says His Wife Is Separated From Him Because of Defendant.

William F. Schlemmer, head of the Hammacher, Schlemmer Company, dealers in hardware at Fourth avenue and Thirteenth street, who was sued for a separation by his wife, Mary A. Schlemmer, on October 13, was named as defendant in a second matrimonial action yesterday when William J. Wilkinson of this city and Great Neck, L. I., filed a complaint in the Supreme Court setting forth that Schlemmer has alienated the affections of Mrs. Wilkinson and demanding $500,000 damages.

The plaintiff alleges two causes of action, charging Schlemmer, in the first place, with having gained Mrs. Wilkinson's affections and in the second with having been her partner in misconduct in this city, Flushing, Paris, Montreal and on shipboard. He asks for $250,000 on each count.

In describing the manner in which Schlemmer won Mrs. Wilkinson's affections, the plaintiff declares that it was accomplished while he was being entertained in the Wilkinson home at Great Neck and treated as a friend. He states that after Mrs. Wilkinson and Schlemmer became friendly his wife left him and that friends brought about a reconciliation, but that after a week at home and under Schlemmer's influence she left again and lives apart from him now.

The names of the litigants first got into the newspapers together when Wilkinson gave Schlemmer a beating on October 6 in Seventy-second street near Broadway. He had followed him and Mrs. Wilkinson in a taxicab from Grand Central Station. Mrs. Schlemmer's separation suit was filed a week later.

RAND SCHOOL AGREES TO ADJUDICATE STATUS

Case Involves License by Board of Regents.

Directors of the Rand School for Social Science who have insisted there was no statute compelling the school to be licensed by the State Board of Regents, agreed in the Supreme Court yesterday to submit the controversy to adjudication.

In the agreed state of facts it is set forth that the school is not a free or common school and that it is not denominational, and that it is not an educational institution incorporated by the University of the State of New York, and that it refuses to make application for a license. The State is represented by Attorney-General Newton and the Rand School by Morris Hillquit.

"When I see all these wonderful new things"—said a woman who visited this New Old store the other day—"I feel like going home and throwing everything out of the house, and furnishing it and myself all over again."

John Wanamaker

Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co.

Broadway at Ninth, New York.

Open from 9 to 5:30.

Telephone 4700 Stuyvesant.

Crossing the Ferry at Liberty Street to the Jersey Side one day recently, the wind blowing softly, but strongly, through the open doors, because of the rapid movement of the boat, there sat two plain persons, a gray headed, elderly man and a little, old-fashioned, sweet-faced, gray headed, wrinkled woman.

The younger women on the boat were not minding the windiness, but the old lady felt it and insisted upon helping her husband into his overcoat. As soon as her motherliness sat down the gentleman arose, stood beside his old lady and with gentleness and in a chivalrous and deferential way taught all who saw these old people a-caring for each other a beautiful lesson of sympathetic courtesy.

We can learn something every day as we go along together.

[Signed]

John Wanamaker
October 25, 1921.

Some of the Uses to Which Au Quatrieme Puts Artistic Wrought Iron

STANDS to hold the pot of ivy or the fish bowl may be, like the one pictured, very simple, with long, straight, slender lines, or richly wrought with decorations of leaves and flowers. Their prices vary from $18 to $45.

A very beautiful wrought iron stand, low, with an ornate, delicately wrought pattern, is the copy of an Italian original. The original is $200; the reproduction, $60. Wrought iron pans to hold the ivy are made double to catch the drained-off water. $20 each.

Fish bowls of glass in several different and very pleasing shapes may be had at $15, of clear white glass or in color, deep blue, turquoise or amethyst tones.

CANDELABRA

of wrought iron are decorative and lend height to a room with their tall dignity, standing beside a long refectory table, flanking a mantel or a console table in a hallway. $20 each.

BRIDGE LAMPS

of wrought iron have been successfully made for Au Quatrieme. These are all adjustable, of course, some with extension arms. $20 and $25 each. Appropriate shades are of simply decorated paper. $7.50 to $12.

FOR FISH BOWL

are all manner of delightful little sea creatures that cannot swim but that will minister to the amusement of the goldfish that can and to the colorfulness of their glass house. Crabs, fish, bits of coral, little sea urchins of Venetian glass in brilliant shades of red, yellow, orange, coral pink. $1.50 to $3.00. Fourth Floor, Old Building

Uncommon Handkerchiefs from Paris

For women. Distinctly new and obviously Parisian in their exquisite colors, original designs and combinations of colors. 75c each. Main Floor, Old Building

New Frocks of Paris inspiration FOR MISS 14 to 20

Copies and adaptations of models from LANVIN, ROLANDE, JENNY, RENEE, ARNOLD and MILER SOEURS.

$65 to $155

The dignity of velvet, the wistful charm of chiffon, the quaintness or sophistication of taffeta and lace, depending on whether the inspiration of their use be 1830 or the Spanish mode, the pleasant softness of crepe roma or crepe de chine—these make frocks to suit every mood and taste.

Many new shades of red, each lovelier than the last, browns ranging from beige and oignon brule to deepest wood brown, grays, lavers, soft greens, blues, and of course black and white.

For afternoon and evening. Second Floor, Old Building

Trailing ostrich flues distinguish this charmingly draped gown of fuchsia crepe roma $165

One of the many unusual evening gowns in our collection of copies and adaptations of the best that Paris had to offer for the new season.

Second Floor, Old Building

PAINTINGS From the Paris Salon

IN THE NEW ART GALLERY
19 just received from the Paris Salon of 1921
16 from the Salons of other years

Color, life, action and unusualness of theme are the thoughts that rush into your mind at first glance at these interesting paintings.

Technique is there, to be sure—plenty of it—in great variety, from the pale, flat pastel effect, voicing the modernist's interpretation of the Puviss de Chavannes School, to the most vivid type of modern realism.

But the pictures were evidently selected not so much for their technique as for pure beauty and human interest. They have a universal appeal, not only for the artist who knows the medium of art and the layman who loves life and a good tale. A half-hour after luncheon may be very pleasantly spent in the new Art Gallery. Eighth Gallery, New Bldg.

Special Events—Today

Odd table cloths at half price and less. Pure linen—Irish, Scotch, Swedish, Moravian, Czeko-Slovakian. Reduced because there are no napkins to match the cloths. A few are soiled. The best value the Linen Shop has ever offered.

Size	Were	Special	Size	Were	Special
120—45x45 in...	$4.25	$1.75	23—72x100 in...	$27.00	$12.50
250—54x54 in...	$8.50	$3.75	22—2x2 1/2 yds...	$22.50	$10.50
20—68x68 in...	$7.50	$3.75	18—2x3 yds...	$27.00	$13.50
20—71x72 in...	$12.75	$6.25	7—2 1/2 x 2 1/2 yds...	$50.00	$25.00
25—71x90 in...	$15.75	$7.75	6—2 1/4 x 2 1/4 yds...	$52.00	$26.00
8—72x90 in...	$22.50	$9.50	24—2 1/4 x 2 1/4 yds...	$47.50	$23.00

First Floor, Old Building

Persian carpets at one-quarter to one-half below current prices. A year ago these rugs would have sold for almost three times today's price.

Size	Were	Size	Were
10.8x8.8 ft...	$275	10x8.6 ft...	$275
12.7x8.6 ft...	$350	9.9x7 ft...	$275
10.2x7 ft...	$275	11.6x9.8 ft...	$390
12.4x8.8 ft...	$325	12.3x10.1 ft...	$450
12.2x8.7 ft...	$250

Second Floor, Old Building

70 Chinese rugs, $19.50 to $175, for $29.50 to $250 grades. Sizes from about 2x4 ft. to about 6x9 ft. Third Gallery, New Building.

A new shipment of exquisite hand-made filet lace at the lowest price we have ever quoted for hand-made filet lace—from 30c yard for 1-inch edging to $1.60 yard for 6-inch wide edging. First Floor, Old Building.

Women's $19.50 sports skirts $15.75. Prunella cloth, black, navy blue, brown, combined with contrasting colors; pleated models; waist bands 26 to 34. Second Floor, Old Building.

Boys' $22.50 to $25 Ulsters will be $17.50 Today! 200 of them. Big fleecy, roomy ulsters with large storm collars that button close or open. Ten different fabrics. Sizes 11 to 18 years. Third Floor, Old Building.

THE SHOPS FOR MEN

On the street floor at Ninth Street. Entrance from Broadway or Fourth Avenue

Good new Fall Suits, $45, $50

Fine lot of patterns, carefully chosen from twenty times their number of samples submitted to us.

Our own models, the result of thorough investigation into the styles desired by the representative taste of New York. And tailored our way—the standard of American tailoring.

Caps from Delion of France—$3.50 (tax 15c)

Full-crowned caps in a variety of colorings. One-piece tops, lined. Octagon tops, unlined. Sizes 6 7/8 to 7 1/2.

Other French caps good for the car have not quite so full a crown. They are seamless one-piece tops. Brown mixture, gray, green and other good effects. $2.50; tax 5c.

Manchester---the top $50 Topcoats

Don't have to advertise this topcoat. Its own appearance and feel and fit beat all the words and phrases we can command.

But we want you to know of a new shipment. Single breasted or double breasted—the one a loose-draping coat, the other a fine Chesterfield. Both in imported tweeds, chevots and shetlands (bought by us abroad) in gray, brown and tan heringbones and bird's-eye effects.

Domet flannel Pajamas, $1.75

Same good, heavy flannel pajamas we sold a year ago for $2.50.

Usual Domet stripes—don't change because men like them—plain or in various combinations of blue, pink and gray. Four sizes, from that appropriate to the average small man to that which will comfortably fit the average big man.

Golf Clubs for everybody

For women, $4.50. Imported and domestic irons and wooden clubs—including clubs for left-handed players—$5 and $5.50. Burlington Arcade Floor, New Building